PRESS ADVISORY

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

DEMCO AUTOMATION CONTINUES UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

(Quakertown, PA- April 15, 2010) – Stephen Maund announced that he has completed the stock acquisition of Demco Automation today from the estate of David Duemler, former President and Technical Director. Maund had served as Demco's Director of Engineering and Manufacturing since January of 2002 and now serves as the company's President & CEO.

“Despite the current economic climate, Demco Automation has been steadily expanding its customer base, developing new partnerships, and continuing to capitalize on our intellectual property and Demco Wedge™ system platforms.” states Maund. “Demco will continue to develop automation solutions that provide value and flexibility in the manufacturing arena, as we have for the past 21 years.”

Demco Automation, located in the Milford Industrial Commons, Quakertown, PA, is a regional leader of modular, scalable, and flexible automated assembly systems for the medical device, electronics, consumer product, pharmaceutical and other industries.
